You will need to log on to your parental control software as an administrator, or log on to the Internet through your ISP as an administrator to change your configuration.

Checking your protection while you work

As you use your computer, Norton Protection Center monitors how well your activities are protected from threats, risks, and damage. Before you begin a task, you can use Norton Protection Center to determine if it is safe to continue.

The Norton Protection Center main window summarizes your current protection for different activities such as emailing and Web browsing. It estimates a general level of protection based on the security programs installed on your computer.

A status indicator also appears in the Windows task bar. The status levels are as follows:

Good	No action is required on your part.
------	-------------------------------------

Attention required	Some issues require your attention but your computer is not at risk.
Urgent attention	Some issues threaten your computer's data or its ability to perform effectively.

You do not have to start your product to be advised when your protection level falls below Good. Norton Protection Center alerts you if you need to take urgent action. These alerts appear above the Windows task bar.

In addition to providing overall protection status, Norton Protection Center displays your protection level for each of the following categories:

Security Basics	Protects your computer from viruses and other security threats, and ensures that your protection is updated frequently. It reports on whether your hard disk has been scanned for viruses recently, if you have spyware protection, and whether you receive automatic Windows and antivirus updates (if applicable).
Email & Messaging	Protects your email and instant messages from viruses, Internet worms, spam, phishing, identity theft activity, and other risks.

Web Browsing	Protects your computer from viruses and other security risks while you are using your Web browser, downloading or streaming music, and playing games. This category also includes ad blocking and pop-up blocking software, and reports on whether parental control features are blocking undesirable Web sites.
Data Recovery	Protects your files, including photographs, music, and business documents, from being lost due to unexpected crashes, accidental file deletions, program malfunctions, install malfunctions, and other computer failures.
Performance	Keeps your disk drives and Windows operating system running smoothly. This category includes programs that clean up unwanted Internet files, examine and repair hard disk problems, and fix Windows problems. The category also includes programs that provide you with real-time virus, spyware, and other risk protection (if applicable).

Service and support solutions

About online support

Symantec offers a range of technical support and customer service options on the Internet at the following address:

<http://service.symantec.com>

On the Symantec support Web site, you can search our technical support knowledge base for help with technical issues, such as installing, configuring, or troubleshooting your Symantec product. You can also find help with subscriptions, rebates, registration, and other nontechnical issues.

The Symantec Web site contains answers to the most common customer questions.

If you received this product when you purchased your computer, your computer manufacturer may be responsible for providing your support.

About phone support

Should you have a question or problem that you cannot resolve on the support Web site by yourself, the site provides a link to information about fee-based phone support. This support is available to all registered customers. Click the link for phone support. You'll be led through the online options first, and then to the telephone contact options.

Support for old and discontinued versions

When Symantec announces that a product will no longer be marketed or sold, telephone support is discontinued 60 days later. Technical information may still be available through the support Web site at the following address:

<http://service.symantec.com>

Subscription policy

If your Symantec product includes virus, threat, firewall, spam, or Web content protection, you may be entitled to receive updates using LiveUpdate. These updates are available through subscription.

Subscription length varies by Symantec product. After your initial subscription ends, you must renew it before you can update your protection. When you run LiveUpdate near the end of your subscription period, you are prompted to subscribe for a nominal charge. Simply follow the instructions on the screen to renew.
